BRETHREN IN UNITY

METHODIST BARACAS ARE HOSPITABLY ENTERTAINED BY PRESBYTERIAN CLASS

"Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" The words of the ancient psalmist found an echo in the hearts of those who gathered in the Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening, forgetting that there is any difference in Christian belief between the churches. The example of Christian fellowship and good will manifested by the Methodist Baracas and the Presbyterian class on this occasion might well be followed with profit by others.

After each class had had its regular meeting all of the boys, about sixty in number, convened in the church auditorium to enjoy a shorting. After a number by the Baraca orchestra opened with some lively music, after which Mr. Harry Glazier favored the audience with a reading. After a number of the Baraca Quartet and more music by the orchestra all of the young men joined heartily in singing the old favorites, "On the Streets of Glory," "Jesus Is Coming to Earth Again," and "Auld Lang Syne."

The hosts then proceeded to entertain their guests by gastronomic means. A large tamale dinner saw its finish, and was enjoyed to the fullest extent.

Mr. Joe Wilson, president of the Presbyterian Baracas, was master of ceremonies for the evening, and requested, after all had had their fill, that Mr. Ray Morrow read the following resolution, which was adopted at the previous meeting:

Whereas, this Baraca Class owes much for its growth and influence to the generous and unselfish services of one who has stood in the relation of friend, advisor and leader; and

Whereas, we are personally indebted, as members of the Baraca Class for the comradeship and inspiration of this friend, who has combined higher ideals and the enthusiasm of youth with practical experience of mature years; and

Whereas, we are deeply grateful, as a class and as individuals, to our benefactor, and desire, as an organization, to express our appreciation, and honor this friend in a signal and distinctive way:

Therefore, Be It Resolved, that this class tender its thanks to Mr. M. P. Harrison, in the tangible form of causing his name to be inscribed on the roll as our first honorary member.

Hearty applause followed the reading of this resolution, after which Mr. Harrison was presented with a clock by the president, as a token of appreciation of his work.

Mr. Harrison responded with kind words to the Baracas. He said that we as Baracas and young men of a great nation ought to be thankful that our own country is not involved in the great conflict which is being waged at present. That aside from having splendid banquets and good times we must try to do something for others and in that way win men to Christ. Personally, the writer agrees with Mr. Harrison in this statement, because he thinks it is the only way to live out the meaning of "Baraca" (blessing).

The presentation of a copy of the Bible to Mr. MacMillan, the teacher of the Presbyterian class, was also interesting. "Mac" responded with a short speech in which he thanked the boys, stating that, God willing, he was going to do more for Baraca than he has ever done before.

After a few more expressions of good will and thanks for the evening's entertainment by some of the Methodist Baracas adjournment was made to the "old church" room where boxing bouts were indulged in and football discussed.

This affair was a success from start to finish, owing to the faithful work of the committee in charge and the Philathea girls who served the dinner.

The words of our good friend, Mr. Harrison, ought to keep ringing in our ears, so that we may not forget that our duty as Baracas is not to ourselves but to others.

J. O. C. CLASS

The J. O. C. class of the First Methodist church held their regular business and social meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Claire Errington, 315 Geneva St., with Mrs. Errington, Miss Gertrude Byers and Miss Mary Wagon as hostesses. There were 28 members present. After the business session a delightful social time and refreshments were enjoyed. The class also made plans for a fruit sale to be held soon.

Identified with all that is best and greatest in the history of the United States, the original colony of William Penn maintains a hold on the hearts of its sons that never fails. Brought up in that wonderful center of industry and wealth the wanderers who have reached the opposite shore of the United States have no reason to be ashamed of the land which they left. Putting climate out of the question, Pennsylvania has many rights to the affections and the loyalty of her children.

ABUNDANT HARVESTS

W. B. KIRK HELPS TO GARNER NEBRASKA'S HALF BILLION DOLLAR CROP

Editor Glendale Evening News:

I think there are some features of farm life in the middle-west which are not enjoyed by the average boy or girl who is brought up on a "ranch" in California. One of these is the annual visit of the threshing machine and its crew, about this time of year.

I have just been out to our farm, 11 1/2 miles north of Curtis, where I found the old thresher at work, and it certainly did take me back to my boyhood days, some of which I spent on my grandmother's farm in the country. The hum of the vibrator, the busy teams hauling in the sheaves and hauling away the threshed grain, the big "feed" at noon, of oodles of country fried chicken and pumpkin pie, which never tastes the same at any other time, and the getting up at 4:30 the next morning in order to complete the job that day—these features were all there, and I enjoyed every one of them.

The threshing outfits try to utilize every minute this season, because the crop of small grain is the largest which Nebraska has ever grown. The continuous rains have made it very hard to save all of it, so that only a small part of it has been threshed as yet. The machines are working principally on grain that has not been stacked, because of "growing" and wet conditions. Some of this wheat on our farm, which, looked at in the shock appeared so weather-beaten and injured that it would yield useless grain, was turning out 25 bushels to the acre of wheat which was bringing 80 cents at the elevator in Curtis.

Our tenant has 60 acres of stacked wheat which he says was the prettiest field he ever saw. It must have been, judging from the fact that it requires 6 stack-yards of 4 large stacks each to contain it. He estimates that it will run 35 to 40 bushels of splendid wheat. I did enjoy wandering around the farm, over the stubblefields and across the canyons covered with "blue-stem" and "grammar-grass," over a carpet of buffalo grass. The stock has had little effect on the grass this year, and the amount of feed of all kinds is the most abundant in the history of the state. The frosts have stopped most vegetation from growing now, and will make some soft corn, especially in the western part of the state—how much depending entirely on how late a real freeze is delayed. Another heavy rain on Friday has delayed all operations again.

Nebraska's production of agricultural products, live-stock, poultry and dairying will amount to about half a billion dollars this year. This, with the manufacturing interests of the state, will show a production of about $600 for every man, woman and child in the state. Then, when we consider that Nebraska is only one of the great agricultural states of the middle-west, we get some idea of the production wealth of our country, and only wonder that the cities of this great granary of the world do not grow faster than they do, and that even more of its residents do not enjoy frequent visits to our beautiful California. With the spirit of Los Angeles business men, Omaha and Kansas City have resources which would justify a population of three times what they really have.

Hastings has had a harvest festival the past week, which they called the "South Platte Exposition," where the country-folk for miles around were in their element, enjoying the merry-go-rounds and "fakeries." One bunch of open-air performers consisting of half a dozen "ancient" girls wearing bald-headed dresses and abbreviated skirts played the worst ragtime in the worst manner ever listened to. I overheard an old farmer say, however, "Gol darn if them girls don't play them insterments powerful fine!"

The greatest feature of the festival was the Baby Show, with 250 entries. It was estimated that it would take five doctors practically the entire week to measure and pass on them. In the "auto parade," which was good, I noticed several banners boosting "Votes for Women" in the general election of next year. Thus early are the women getting busy, and there is every indication that both prohibition and women-suffrage will carry in Nebraska next year.

On the train last week I met Arthur Pearson, who was a "bell-hop" at the Lincoln Hotel in Lincoln 20 years ago. Arthur is now in the sheep business at Cody, Wyo., and told me that he will sell his lambs and "clip" this year for about $11,000. An example of what a good ambitious boy may do.

BUILDING FIELD

MAY BROTHERS SAY GLENDALE SHOWS GREAT GAIN IN CONSTRUCTION OF HOUSES

According to the May Brothers, builders and contractors, First National Bank Bldg., there is every prospect for a good season in the building field in Glendale during the season now entered upon. Business has been good during the past two months," said Mr. J. C. May. "This improvement has not been confined to our firm. It has been shared by the principal contractors of Glendale.

"There is every indication that the improvement in the building field will continue. The increased number of permits in September is evidence that the situation in Glendale is slowly getting back to a normal condition. This firm is completing Mr. A. W. Tower's new house on Adams street. When completed this will be a handsome residence. It is of frame construction, in the colonial style and will contain seven rooms. The whole is fitted up in first-class modern style, with built-in features. The floors are hardwood. The cost of this house is $2200.

"We are also busy with the construction of a handsome brick residence for Miss M. Taggart, on Hawthorne street. This is a one-and-a-half-story brick residence. It is built in modern style, with hardwood floors and all the latest features. It will cost $2000.

"At Marian we are building a 9-room house for Mr. Alexander Jeffrey. This will be modern in every respect and will cost $5000. It will have two tile mantels, beamed ceilings, hardwood floors and a 4-room garage, which will be quite a striking feature.

"There are many prospects of other building during the next few months and I do not doubt that a great deal of what is now being talked over and considered will be put into definite shape. "Apart from the building that is going on in the city a great deal of work is being done in the country districts. There is a very visible movement in the improvement of acreage all round this city and buildings of many kinds are going up. In short I am not afraid to say that there is a distinct and visible change in conditions for the better. That this improvement will continue I have very little doubt."

SHAKESPEARE SECTION

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Shakespeare Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club Monday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. W. E. Evans, Orange street. The lesson was interesting and instructive from a historical as well as from a literary standpoint. The first act of "Antony and Cleopatra" was finished and the second was begun by covering the first scene. The lesson for the first Monday in November will be the remainder of Act II and Act III. Next session members will answer to their names at roll call by giving quotations from the play. Members should come to the class supplied with notebooks and pencils.

Three new members were added at Monday's meeting, making ten new members for the year and bringing the total membership up to 23. The leaders are delighted with the work of Mrs. Garrett, the instructor.

I notice a news item from San Diego announcing the arrival there of D. E. Thompson of Lincoln, another example of how a man may rise. A former Burlington conductor and superintendent, Mr. Thompson came within five votes of being elected U. S. senator, has been ambassador to Mexico, and is estimated to be worth from fifteen to twenty millions.

The war news nowadays seems to be overshadowed, in the newspapers, by the doings of Mrs. Galt, the lady whom President Wilson is about to marry. Whatever view one may take of this matter I think there is truth in the philosophy of A. L. Bixby, who thus expresses himself on this subject:

"It is no fault of Mrs. Galt That Woodrow Wilson found her, And smiled a smole and gently stole An arm or two around her. She could not say, 'Now go away, You bold and saucy fellow'— So, as it is, the fault is his. Her beauty made him mellow.

"I cannot say I like that way Of doing things, my brother; Should Mollie die, I'd never try To tie up with another. My marriage vow I'd hold somehow Until death's dart should free me— In yonder sphere, then, Mollie dear Would be right glad to see me."

HOW JAPAN GETS CHINA'S TRADE

In the end national rivalries are commercial and little else. Here and there racial differences produce antagonism; but the great line that divides nations is purely commercial. It is the fight for the markets of the world that is racking Europe from end to end at this moment. In China, where there are 450,000,000 people, is one of the most remunerative markets in the world. All the nations have been striving for it.

Just at present there is an open door in China for only one nation and that nation is the Japanese. This is not because the Japanese have shut the door against other nations. Before the war Germany had a considerable hold in China, through the province of Kiaochow. Now that that province has been taken over by the Japanese it is Japan that has the advantage in China. Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia—all intimately concerned in the future of China and in getting their share of the markets, are shut out because the war is absorbing their energies. Germany has been thrown out bodily and Japan alone has the key to the door.

If the United States is to get any share of the enormous business that is done by outside nations in China it must take a very different course from that which it is pursuing at present. It must train men who can speak the language of the country and thus can get at the Chinaman first hand and not through an interpreter. There lies the whole secret of Japan's success as a gatherer of China's trade.

That is what anyone would expect. The Chinese do not like the Japanese. They have never liked them. They have a dozen contemptuous names by which they style them, the mildest of which is "lice." That does not exhibit much respect for the islanders; yet the Japanese are bit by bit gathering to themselves the whole trade of China. They manage to do this because they are orientals like the Chinese and understand their ways and methods of buying and selling. Then they understand the Chinese language, which has a family resemblance to the language of the Land of the Rising Sun.

There is a resemblance between the two languages, as has been said, yet that resemblance is not so great that it does not necessitate a close study of Chinese to enable the Japanese to converse freely with the Chinaman. That is where the other nations have always been handicapped in their commercial and other dealings with the Chinese. They don't understand their language and they don't understand the people. Naturally the Chinese will prefer to do business with a merchant who is able to talk their language.

The Japanese are nothing if not thorough. Ten years ago they foresaw the struggle for the Chinese markets and prepared for it; now they are reaping the reward of their forethought. They established a commercial college in Shanghai and sent their buying merchants there to be educated. In that center of Chinese thought and business the young Japanese soon learned the Chinese language and the Chinese likes and dislikes. The men who went to that college were picked students, far above the average in ability. The students were furnished with traveling scholarships and sent out on their vacations to travel through China in order to perfect themselves in the language and customs of the Celestials. This trained corps of men, in number 1000, and increasing monthly by the number of 100, is the formidable foe that has driven American competition out of China and has secured the rich markets of that land for Japan. Not till the United States does likewise will she have a chance of recovering her lost prestige.

MASSACRE OF THE ARMENIANS

That the United States should have protested against the massacre of the Armenians by the Turks is proof sufficient that there is no exaggeration in the stories that come daily from Egypt and Asia Minor regarding the unspeakable atrocities that are being perpetrated on a defenseless people by the orthodox of Mohammed. The "unspeakable Turk" is determined that the name he has earned for himself shall be deserved.

It has been proposed to appeal to the Kaiser as the ally of the Turk to remonstrate with his friends on their conduct. The proposal has not found favor in Berlin, where the doctrine of making war as hideous as possible is in vogue. Indeed, it would be difficult to persuade the Turks that the kaiser would interest himself in the "accursed Giaour," the despised and worthless Armenian. What would be the lives of a million of those "dogs" to a great sultan and hadji like Wilhelm?

It is told in the bazaars of Constantinople that the kaiser, during his famous visit to Constantinople, some years ago when he gave the famous drinking fountain to that city, was converted to Mohammedanism. The other day one of the preaching mullahs who had just returned from a sojourn in foreign lands was preaching in a Constantinople mosque. It is said that he told his hearers that Kaiser Wilhelm had been converted and become a faithful follower of Allah and Mohammed. "See my brethren," said the mullah, "I have brought hither the evidence of the pious zeal of the great Mohammedan sultan Hadji Wilhelm, who is so zealous for the faith that he is burning and destroying all the shrines that the superstitious Christian of Europe erected in past days."

Here, it is stated, the mullah exhibited pictures of the ruins of Rheims cathedral and Liege, Lisle, Antwerp, Louvain and other famous shrines of the Christian faith which have been battered to pieces by German artillery. "See," he cried, "how the new hadji is demonstrating his faith in the prophet." The audience was greatly excited and vastly pleased. They gathered round the mullah, examined the pictures and thanked Allah for the conversion and great zeal of the great hadji. Such is the story.

Whether true or not it illustrates the sort of stories that go the round of the Turkish provinces and keep alive the flame of fanaticism that results in the death of thousands and hundreds of thousands of the unfortunate Christians of Armenia.

Of what use is American protest when German responsible officials state openly that the dealings of the Turks with the Armenians are merely the business of the Turks and concern none else. That the only way to deal with the Armenians, who, they say, are always intriguing against the sultan and his government, is to execute them. America may protest but unless this country is prepared to back up its protest with force of arms, its remonstrances will pass by the Turks like the idle wind which they regard not.

Backed by German encouragement Turkey has practically told the United States to mind its own business. The sultan is reported to have sent a more courteous answer to Pope Benedict in answer to his remonstrance; but in spite of that the massacres go on and are not likely to stop until the supply of Armenians or of ammunition shall fail.

THIS STATE LEADS IN MINERALS

California stands pre-eminent among the states of the union in the diversity of her mineral wealth and is exceeded in the total value of the annual output by only four—the large coal and iron producing states of the east.

California's yield for the year 1914 though a slight decrease from that of 1913, due to the general business depression which pervaded the entire country for the greater part of 1914, maintained the creditable sum of $93,436,553 worth of crude materials. It should be borne in mind that this value, with the exception of gold, silver and quicksilver, is as far as obtainable, that of the crude materials at the mine, or quarry, or well, as the case may be—and not sale price values at the marketing centers, which would include the elements of transportation and refining cost and the middlemen's profits.

The gold yield of 999,113 fine ounces, valued at $20,653,496 was, with the exception of 1883, the greatest of any year in California since 1864. California leads all states in this item, as well as petroleum, which is the largest single item here, the 1914 figures for which were: 102,881,907 barrels, value $47,487,109. The structural materials, including cement, crushed rock, building stones, etc., hold a prominent place, and are growing in importance each year. Their total for 1914 was $14,469,981.

AN ITALIAN HEROINE

A little girl in Italy possesses the most wonderful doll ever seen in her part of the kingdom. Her name is Jolanda, but no, she isn't the Princess Jolanda at all. Indeed she is just about as far removed from the royal family as a little girl could possibly be. But then there is the doll, her name is Jolanda, too—Jolanda Helena—and this is how it happened. Not long ago Armando Frassinetti (who boasts three whole years of life) was playing near the barn on his father's farm when he fell into a six-foot well. Armando beat his arms about and succeeded in keeping his head above water. He screamed. His sister Jolanda heard him. She stretched herself out flat on the ground and by reaching down into the well with all the strength of her five years she managed to grab Armando's shirt and pull him out just as he was giving out. She is little more than a baby herself.

Someone told the story to the Princess Jolanda. Of course she was at once interested in the brave deed of her little farm girl namesake. So she told her mother, the queen, about it. The queen told one of her court ladies who in turn told the sub-prefect of Imola that the royal princess wished to extend a few words of praise to her namesake for her brave deed. Also there was a doll in a specially made case for the youthful heroine. It is needless to say that when the sub-prefect arrived carrying the doll and charged with his regal message there was no more important household in all Italy than that of the little farm Frassinetti.

Of course the real personage is five-year-old Jolanda, who can't quite believe it's all true.

It seems like a fairy tale that she should have this wonderful, beautiful doll—the gift of a princess.

WOMEN AT WORK

BRITISH MUNICIPAL TRAMWAYS ASSOCIATION USES THEM AS MOTORMEN

Women tram conductors have come to stay—at least in England.

In her fight for emancipation, the Englishwoman has established her right and ability to hold the rear platform. Serious consideration is even being given to ceding her the front platform. Motorwomen seems a question of but a few months.

Since the beginning of war, women have been employed as conductors in Germany, France, Italy and England. Nearly 2,000 now have permanent positions. Another 15,000 have applications on file. From these every vacancy is being filled in preference to men.

The crowning culmination came when the seal of official approval was placed upon her employment by the Municipal Tramways association of the United Kingdom, in annual conference. There was not a single protest against her employment and when the proposal of "motor-women" was made cries of "Why Not?" rang from all parts of the room.

The assembly found that woman trolley car conductors brought certain problems and these were discussed.

The delegates from Glasgow, where nearly 1,000 women are employed, stated it was feared the skirts of the conductors would prove an impediment in winter in running up and down stairs on the double-deckers.

The Glasgow corporation proposes to remedy this by furnishing the women conductors with gaiters.

Glasgow has been so won to the woman conductor idea that a permanent school of instruction has been opened. A ticket-inspector is the teacher.

Each pupil is put through the process of inquiring the destination, issuing and punching tickets, and calling stations until she is letter perfect in her route.

One of the few complaints registered against the women was their lack of appreciation of the value of time. They find it difficult to realize the matter of being a few moments late in signing on or in taking up a relief is serious. The companies are trying to overcome this difficulty through inspectors.

One of the most frequent causes for this delay it was reported was that "a woman conductor had something to say to another woman and would not go on duty till she finished it."

At the Glasgow school, while one woman is being put through her recitation the others listen. This acquaints them with all routes in the city.

It was agreed that women between 24 and 35 make the best conductors. Their influence has been all for the best. Even on the "roughest and toughest" routes they can control obstreperous passengers better than the men conductors.

So successful has been their work that the congress decided to ask the county council of London to remove its ban against their employment. London is the one city in the British Isles that so far has held out against them.

There Was a Reason!

"My husband has deserted me, and I want a warrant," announced the large lady.

"What reason did he have for deserting you?" asked the prosecutor.

"I don't want any lip from you! I want a warrant! I don't know what reason he had."

"I think I understand his reason," said the official feebly, as he proceeded to draw up a warrant.

The Worst Yet

You can imagine the schoolmarm's astonishment, says Collier's Weekly, when Tommy returned to school with this note from his mother:

"Dere Teecher: You keep tellin' my boy to brthe with his palate. Maybe rich childrens has got palates, but how about when their father only makes two dollars a day and has got six children? First, it's one thing, then it's another, and now it's palates. That's the worst yet."

A Certain Sign of Foolishness

Mrs. Piper—"Which of Brown's daughters was it that eloped with the cigar drummer?"

Piper—"The sensible one; the foolish one married a Pittsburgh millionaire!"

But we never should adopt the doctrine of "benevolent neutrality" or non-resistance in dealing with the fly. Swat it!

The county superintendent of schools says that $150,000 a year might be saved by purchasing supplies through a single agency. At least worth thinking about.

Poet Riley refuses to tell his age but his intimate friends decline to be secret about it. They say that he is 62. Also that he is approaching 60, and is 66. There you are.

his home county, until coming to Los

NON-PARTISAN ACT

Much interest is being taken throughout the community in the amendments to be voted on at the coming election. Particular interest seems to attach to the nonpartisan

Avenue school auditorium, Monday,
Oct. 25, at 8 o'clock. This meeting

TROPICO

In compliment to her house guest,
Mrs. William Marsh Burns of Chicago, Mrs. Edward H. Weston entertained on Tuesday with a charming luncheon, covers being laid for seventeen. The dining room was a glowing mass of color in the artistic arrangement of scarlet hyacinth and trailing greenery. The afternoon sped all too quickly, filled as it was with music, games and happy rem-iniscences of Eastern friends and school days. Those who shared the afternoon's pleasure were: Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. C.
L. Peckham and son Vassar, Mrs. Mc-
Naughton Barnes and son Kinney, Mrs. Fleta Kinne with her sons Kenneth and Allison and daughter Media,
Mrs. Mary Weston Seamans and sons, Miss Betty Burns, Treat Burns and Masters Bent and Chandler Weston.

Mr. Will Richardson, son of Mrs.
Ella Richardson, is expected home the last of this week from San Francisco, where he has been enjoying the fall.

Mrs. Ella W. Richardson is put-house. This will be the opening reception arranged by the Parent-

For this reason the parents of pupils of all the Tropico schools, including the Park Ave. school, are cordially invited. As a guarantee of an excellent program, the Association announces that Mrs. W. C. B. Rich-is chairman of the Social Committee.

COMBINES STABLES

By the purchase of the business and stock of the Central Stables, on Broadway, Mr. Charles E. McNary, proprietor of the Glendale Stables, 328 Glendale avenue, has obtained control of the entire livery business of Glendale. There will be many advantages both to customers of the stables and to the city in this combination. For a long time the Central stables on Broadway have been an eyesore and a detriment to that part of the city. Its removal will be a vast improvement and will enhance the value of surrounding property.

In the large and spacious livery establishment on Glendale avenue Mr.
McNary will take care of ten boarders, a number which is likely to increase. He will also have 22 horses for hire for all purposes. His express work is growing and before this labor of love. There is no goodness without activity.

Nearly a year ago a man was arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of burglary. Recently his case came up, and was postponed. No wild, mad haste in court procedure here.

FROM WHAT STATE?

The Evening News is at present publishing the names of the states in which citizens of Glendale formerly resided. Do you have sufficient regard for your old home to give us the name of the State?

Good printing, like good clothes, costs according to quality. It requires a skilled tailor to turn out a neat and well-fitting suit, and likewise it required a skilled printer to produce a neat and well-printed job of printing. The Evening News office calls attention to the extra fine quality of printing it always puts out.

PARKER'S PARAGRAPHS—POLITICAL, PIETICAL, POETICAL, PRACTICAL

(By Samuel Parker)

A well known judge called to preside in a government land deal involving oil interests and finding himself the owner of stock in a corporation dealing in such interests, refused to serve in the case in question, thereby adding greatly to his already great reputation as a jurist and fair-minded judge. Had he tried the case and by rulings and instructions to the jury and in final decision sympathetically hedged for the company in which he was a stock holder, who would have been the wiser?

"Listed in cause of sin, why should a good be evil?" Halloween originally observed as a religious rite, long since lost its purpose in that direction, and is now mainly used (if even as a pretext by religious people) as a cover for conduct that worldly people would not be guilty of on any other day. When under the name of sport, or play, or fun, injury is often done to life and property, it is time for sober, religious, well-behaved people to think.

When a good citizen got up one November 1st and found his carriage on top of his barn—another, his front gate taken off (and it never got back)—and in the city with wooden sidewalks for blocks in length turned bottom side up—all these parties were not impressed with Halloween as a religious ceremony. They would probably name some other influence (and justly) as responsible.

The human stomach will not stand a vast amount of fooling—but everywhere in every land it makes rigid ruling. And our Sunny Southland gets more glory from things good to eat than from climate, flowers, mountains of gravel or plains of sand. An enthusiastic girl of the Central West doing the Coast, both Fairs, and home via New Orleans and the West—declares in a letter to her home paper: "We not more and better food to eat in Los Angeles for 25 cents than elsewhere for a dollar."

"Yes, that is poor Becky. She's never been right since the awful scenes that terrible night. At times she will peacefully and quietly seem and then start up with an awful scream, as in frantic effort the poor child tries to shut out that picture from here eyes. She's shy and very timid at play, and a haunted look is her's every day. Outgrow it? God only of that can know. Meantime I am hoping in deepest we that He will my awful anguish see and give my little girl back to me. "How did it happen?" Only a fright—from a Wild Ghost Visit Halloween night.

It might be interesting to the general public to know first why a drinking man is given a license to drive an automobile, and second, why it is not taken from him when an accident follows as a result of intoxication. Has the liquor trust such grip on officials that it can protect its friends even along these dangerous lines? Why is it so hard to convince officials that hazardous business must be done by sober men?

The most frantic efforts made to convince the dear people that the abolishing of party in state affairs would be destructive of every vital interest in the state of California, are made by those who having used party machinery for their own nomination and election deliberately betrayed party action and voted the Democratic presidential ticket and urged every body else to do so. Among these party apostles was Senator Works, who having sold out his party then—is so anxious to perpetuate it now. Party lines are no more valuable now than at that time.

"Sing"—Old Neptune. Save the others but get that idiot's goat, who with an utter lack of sense proceeds to rock the boat, and that near relative of his who when the charge exploded and killed a boy: "I didn't think the blamed old thing was loaded." Or that fool hunter who went out the distant hills to scan and blazed away to shoot a deer—and, lo, it was a man. Or that ghost party Halloween by youths a little wild, but left a near-crazed mother to watch a crazy child. Oh gaze upon the picture, you know it has been done. What agony to others. Now did you have much fun?

Some very well meaning but greatly deceived fellow citizens shy at the no party state proposition lest it lead to a personal man party, destructive of future party action. To such it is only necessary to mention the fact that strict party action enthroned Governor "Rail Road," who ran the state with rare despotic power until dethroned by Governor Johnson.

The defeat of suffrage in New Jersey is by some attributed to the reflex influence of President Wilson's new born zeal for the cause and his action along social lines of late—the staid and sober voters of the state thinking it not best to change, as the president had become too gay and giddy—almost neglective of duties at the Capitol while so much in the limelight elsewhere.

Prophet—"Don't ask me. If you need one, take it."

FOR AMERICA FIRST

CAMPAIGN BEGINS FOR RAPID AMERICANIZATION OF ALL FOREIGN IMMIGRATION

Augmenting President Wilson's declaration that America's foreign-born residents must be de-hyphenated, the U. S. Bureau of Education today announced the beginning of a vigorous country-wide de-hyphenating campaign.

A three-part constructive program is being developed by the Bureau, with the following features:

The insuring that newly-arrived immigrant children are immediately placed in the public schools and not sent into factories and mills.

The promotion of the naturalization of alien residents of the United States.

The teaching of English to all foreign-born residents of this country who cannot read and speak that language.

The first step, that of seeing that newly-arrived immigrant children are placed in schools, is now being carried out through co-operation between the various school officials of the country and the immigration officials at the ports of entry.

When a group of immigrants arrive, the inspectors at the port learn to what localities the individual families with children are going. Then they send to the proper school authorities the names of the children they can expect. These officials then make strenuous efforts to prevent any evasion of the compulsory education laws by getting the children into schools as soon as they arrive.

In addition, the school authorities are also actively engaged in "recruiting" work among the fathers of these same children to induce them to take out naturalization papers.

A first edition of 50,000 brightly colored, attractively printed posters, setting forth in English and the six principal languages the advantages of becoming a citizen, have been published. The Bureau is sending these posters to 25,000 postmasters and 8,000 school officials throughout the country, by whom they will be posted conspicuously to catch the eye of the unacculturated immigrant.

Educational authorities are also following up this printed appeal with personal talks to immigrants. A series of receptions is being planned at which both government officials and naturalized immigrants will talk to these men.

The posters sent out impress upon the alien who cannot read and speak English the importance of learning the language from the standpoint of becoming a good citizen and making a good wage. They tell him to go to the nearest night school and register or to go to the postmaster or school official nearest him and enlist their aid in getting in touch with a school.

In a letter to school superintendents the Bureau of Education points out that there are 2,953,000 foreign-born whites 10 years or over in the United States and no less than 2,898,606, fifteen years or over, generally beyond the compulsory education laws, who cannot speak English. Commenting upon this situation the letter says:

"These facts seem so appalling when taken in connection with the figures for illiteracy which are almost as large, that they call for action on the part of the Federal Government which will reach the non-English-speaking immigrant individually."

Officials of the Bureau intimated, unofficially, that in times of national crisis such a situation might easily prove, if not disastrous, at least extremely embarrassing to the government.

Realizing the danger of having such a large body of the inhabitants of this country almost wholly unacquainted with the national thought of the nation, the Bureau is going to push the campaign of education through with all the force and speed possible and probably will ask congressional aid when presenting its estimates for the next appropriation.

ROAD MAKING

American extravagance is illustrated in the land wasted in the construction of roadways. Throughout a great part of the country, and especially in the section generally known as the West, a public road is four rods, or about sixty-six feet wide. Macadam is seldom laid more than eighteen feet in width. A farm wagon is four feet eight inches wide from wheel to wheel. If a foot be allowed for hubs, it is figured, three such vehicles can be placed abreast on an eighteen-foot road. One a four-rod government highway ten wagons could be set side by side in single rank. The point is that no such width is required and thus millions of acres of fine farming land is wasted. It is worse than wasted, for the unused space along the used roadways is given over to the propagation of weeds which are an annoyance and an expense to the farmers. Some day the necessity for planting along the roadsides may be felt in the United States as it has been felt in some other countries for centuries.

BERNSTORFF HAS LOST HIS BED

Between diplomatic worries and the trials of housecleaning Ambassador von Bernstorff is having a tough time. After one of his recent hurried trips to Washington to confer with Secretary of State Lansing, while workmen on high ladders and scaffolds had disorganized everything, the immaculate ambassador rushed out of one door, under a ladder, dodged a paint pail and reached safety in the opposite doorway.

"Will you stay here over night or return to New York?" he was asked. "I'd like to stay here, at least one night," he said and waved his arms desperately toward the workmen, "but I cannot find my bed."

The Price

Jean longed for a kitten. When illness made it necessary for Jean to go to the hospital, her mother said: "I will make a bargain with you Jean. If you will be a brave little girl about your operation you shall have the nicest kitten I can find." Jean took the ether, but later, as she came out from the under the anesthetic, she realized how very wretched she felt. The nurse leaned over to catch her first spoken word. "What a bum way to get a cat!" moaned the child.

Extraction

There is a collection agency in a neighboring town which feels proud since it received a telephone call from a lady who said:

"Will you come down here right away?"

"My little daughter has swallowed a nickel. I understand that you people can get money out of anybody."

Long Branch as the summer capital isn't to be contemplated with calmness at Atlantic City.
